GDC announces SA-2100A digital cinema server deployment with United Entertainment Corporation's cinema

Burbank, California (March 25, 2009) – With more U.S. theatre operators beginning to embrace digital technology, GDC is riding high on this digital conversion wave with a number of recent successes in the U.S. market. The latest is a deployment contract with United Entertainment Corporation (“UEC”) to install GDC’s SA-2100A series servers into its cinemas. UEC is a privately held motion picture theatre circuit and entertainment company based in Minnesota operating over 100 cinema screens.

UEC joins a number of other prominent independent cinema chains throughout the US in choosing GDC’s cinema servers as their digital cinema server of choice.

“UEC is pleased to partner with GDC Technology in bringing Digital Cinema to our locations,” stated Mike Daniels – Development Manager, United Entertainment Corp. “We found GDC’s excellent customer service, advanced product and ease of use to be the compelling factors that led us to our decision.”

Launched in ShowEast 2008, GDC’s highly acclaimed SA-2100A server is GDC’s flag-ship server product which has scored well with many exhibitors worldwide. “The SA-2100A offers the best choices in technology, performance and reliability to our customers while keeping the price affordable,” said Dr. Man-Nang CHONG, founder and CEO of GDC Technology. “UEC is among our growing list of U.S. exhibitors who have clearly recognized and appreciated the GDC offer; we are hopeful to win the hearts and minds of even more U.S. exhibitors in the near future.”
